PRONOUNCING VOCABULARY

OF GREEK, LATIN, SCRIPTURAL, AND OTHER ANCIENT NAMES.

RULES AND DIRECTIONS FOR PRONUNCIATION.

The pronunciation indicated in the following list is that usually heard from educated speakers of English, who as a rule do not attempt to pronounce Greek or Latin or Scriptural names in the way in which they were pronounced by the ancients themselves—if that could be with certainty determined—but rather seek to assimilate the pronunciation to that of their own language. There is therefore no great difficulty in the pronunciation of such words, and by attention to the following rules and directions any name in the list can be sounded correctly.

Special knowledge required for the right pronunciation of these words is—

1. The seat of accent; and
2. The sound to be given to the letters as they stand in the word.

The syllable of the word which is to receive the accent is denoted by the usual mark, an acute accent, placed immediately after it, as the first syllable of the word Ca'to, the second of the word Cam-by'ses, and the third of the word Sancho-ni'a-thon. The seat of the accent varies considerably in words of more than two syllables, though it is never on the last syllable; in dissyllables it is always on the first. The pronunciation of the latter, therefore, as also of monosyllabic words, after the following remarks are studied, will present no difficulty, and consequently few of them are given in the list below. The division into separate syllables is denoted by the mark - as well as by the accentuation mark. Two vowels coming together in a word, but having one or other of these marks between them, must therefore always be pronounced as belonging to different syllables.

The sounds to be given to the several letters will be considered under two general heads, viz.: 1. The vowel letters; and 2. The consonant letters. It must always be borne in mind that silent letters, so common in English (e final for instance), are the exception in the words here treated of.

I.—THE VOWEL LETTERS.

The vowels heard in the words fate, me, pine, note, and tube, are called long vowels; while those heard in the words fat, met, pin, not, and us, are called short vowels.

1. When any of the vowel letters a, e, i, o, and u, constitute an accented syllable, and also when they end one, they are pronounced as long vowels; thus, in the first syllable of the words Ca'to, Pe'lops, Di'do, So'lon, and Ju'ba, they are pronounced as in the respective key-words fate, me, pine, note, and tube.

2. When the vowel letters are followed by one or more consonants in a syllable, they are pronounced as short vowels, thus, in the first syllable of the words Cas'ca, Hec'u-ba, Cin'na, Cor-du-ba, and Pub'li-us, they are pronounced as in the respective key-words fat, met, pin, not, and us.

3. When the letter a constitutes an unaccented syllable, as in A-by'dos, and when it ends one, as in Ju'ba, it is pronounced as a in fat, or with a short sound somewhat similar.

4. The so-called diphthongs æ, œ, are always pronounced as the e of me, and are therefore simple vowel sounds, as in Cæ'sar, Præ'tum, Æ'o-lus, Bœ-o'ti-a.

5. The digraph ai in a syllable is pronounced like ai in wait. It occurs only in Scriptural names. The ai of Greek words was pronounced like the common English affirmative ay, or much the same as i in pine; but by the common spelling it is Latinized into æ. An a and an i coming together, but belonging to different syllables, will of course have either the accent or the mark - between them.

6. When r follows a in the same syllable, and is itself followed by a consonant, as in Ar'go, Car-tha'go, the a is pronounced as in far. In such a word as Ar'a-dus it is sounded as in fat.

7. The digraph au, as in Clau'di-us, Au-fid'i-us, is pronounced as a in fall. An a and a u coming together, however, may belong to different syllables, as in Em-ma'us.

8. When e constitutes an unaccented syllable, as in the first of the word E-te'o-cles, and when it ends one, as in E-vad'ne, it is pronounced as e of me. And when e is followed by s as the final letter of a word, as in Her'mes, Ar-is-toph'a-nes, it is always pronounced as e of me.

9. When e is followed by r in the same syllable, as in Her'mes, Mer-cu'ri-us, the e is pronounced as e of her. The letters i, u, and y, before r, have the same sound, as in Vir'gil, Bur'sa, Cyr'nus. When er is followed by a vowel, however, e is sounded as in met, thus Er'a-to, Mer'o-e.

10. The digraph ei, as in Plei'a-des, is pronounced as i of pine. An e and i coming together, however, may belong to different syllables. Compare Rules 5 and 7.

11. The diphthong or digraph eu, as in Leu-cip'pus, E-leu'sis, Ti-mo'theus, is pronounced as u of tube. It occurs chiefly in Greek names. In other cases the e and u belong to separate syllables. Compare Rules 10 and 7.

12. When i constitutes the first and last syllables of words, whether accented or not, as in I-be'ri-a, Fa'bi-i, it is pronounced as i of pine. And i as the terminal vowel of a syllable at the end of words is also so pronounced, as in Im'ri, A-ceph'a-li.

13. But i at the end of any other unaccented syllable than the last, as in In'di-a, Fa'bi-i, is pronounced as i of pin.

14. In many cases i assumes the value of y consonant in English; thus Aquileia is pronounced as if Aqui-le'ya, Caius as if Ca'yus. This is especially common in the terminations of words.

15. O at the end of an unaccented syllable, as also when constituting an unaccented syllable by itself, is generally pronounced long or of medium length. Followed by r in the same syllable, as in Gor'gus, it is not usually pronounced long, but as o of not. The o in such a position is, however, by some speakers pronounced rather long than short, this being pretty much a matter of taste.

16. At the end of an unaccented syllable, or forming an unaccented syllable (as in Æ'du-i, A-bi'hu), u is pronounced much the same as when accented, but shorter. Following q it is pronounced as w.

17. The letter y is pronounced as i would be in corresponding positions; thus the y in Ty'a-na is as i of pine; and the y in Tyn'da-rus as i of pin.

II.—THE CONSONANT LETTERS.

The consonant letters, b, d, f, h, j, k, l, m, n, p, q, r, v, y, and z, have each but one sound, and as that is the English sound, they present no difficulty. The letters c, g, s, t, and x, have each more than one sound, and hence require rules to pronounce them aright.

1. C and g are hard, or sounded as in call and gun respectively, when immediately followed by the vowel letters a, o, and u, as in Cas'ca, Corne'li-a, Cur'ti-us, Hec'a-te, Hec'u-ba, Gal'lus, Gor'di-us, Au-gus'tus, Meg'a-ra. C and g are also hard immediately before other consonant letters, as in Clau'di-us, Ec-bat'a-na, Hec'tor, Glau'cus.

2. C and g are soft when immediately followed by the vowel letters e, i, and y, and the so-called diphthongs æ, œ, either in the same or in the following syllable, as in Cer'be-rus, Cin'na, Cyre'ne, Cic'e-ro, Gel'li-us, Gis'co, Gy'as, Ag-e-la'us, Cæ'sar, Cœ-cil'ius. In words such as Dacia, Sicyon, Phocion, Accius, Glaucia, Cappadocia, the ci or cy, having the accent immediately before it, is often pronounced as shi; some authorities, however, retain the s sound in such words.

3. In Scriptural names, such as Megiddo, Gideon, g is always hard, except in the single word Bethphage. In consulting the list this will have to be kept in mind. The s following Scriptural names will serve as a guide.

4. When c and g are initial letters of a syllable, and immediately followed by n or by t, they are usually left silent in pronunciation; thus, Cneus is pronounced Ne'us; Gnidus, Ni'dus; and Ctenos, Te'nos. Some persons, however, pronounce the c and g in these combinations; and should the reader elect to do so, he must pronounce them hard.

5. In Scripture names h often follows a vowel in the same syllable; as in Micah, Isaiah, Calneh, the vowel in these cases being pronounced with its short sound and the h being mute. In Greek names rh is equivalent to simple r.

6. The digraph ch is pronounced as k, thus, Achilles is pronounced A-kil'les; Chios, Ki'os; Enoch, E'nok. The Scripture name Rachel is the single exception to this rule, ch in it being sounded as in chain.

7. S as an initial of words is pronounced as s of the word son, as in So'lon, Spar'ta, Styx. It is commonly so pronounced as an initial of other than the first syllable of words, as in Su'sa, Si-sen'na; but in some exceptional cases the s receives the sound of z, as in the word Cæsar, which is pronounced Cæ'zar. These exceptions will be denoted by the direction 's as z', inclosed within parentheses, thus, 'Cæ'sar (s as z)'. See also Rule 10.

8. S final of words, when preceded by e, is pronounced as z; thus Aristides is pronounced Aris-ti'dez. And the e so placed is that of the word me, as remarked already. But when the final s is preceded by any other vowel, it is pronounced as s of son, as in Archytas, Amphipolis, Abydos, Adrastus.

9. S at the end of words when preceded by a liquid, l, m, n, or r, is pronounced as z, as in Mars, which is pronounced Marz; Aruns, A'runz.

10. Si forming an unaccented syllable, preceded by an accented syllable with a final consonant, and followed by a vowel, is commonly pronounced shi; as in Al'si-um, Hor-ten'si-us. When the si is preceded by a vowel it is very commonly pronounced as zi, as in Mœ'si-a, He'si-od, A-le'si-a, Cæ'si-us; and sometimes as the z of pleasure, as in As-pa'si-a, The-o-do'si-a. But the usage in these cases is not very well settled, and some persons carefully preserve the pure sound of the s even in such situations.

11. When ti followed by a vowel occurs next after the accented syllable of a word, it is pronounced as sh; thus Statius is pronounced Sta'shi-us; Helvetii, Hel-ve'shi-i; and similarly with Abantias, Actium, Maxentius, Laertius, &c. The proper sound of the t is preserved, however, when ti is accented or when it follows s or another t, as in Mil-ti'a-des, Sal-lus'ti-us, Brut'ti-i; so also in the termination -tion, as in A-e'ti-on. In such words as Domitius the t itself may be said to receive the sh sound: Do-mish'i-us.

12. The digraph th is pronounced as th of the word thin, as in Tha-li'a.

13. X at the beginning of syllables is pronounced as z, thus Xenophon is Zen'o-phon. But at the end of syllables it retains its voiceless sound of ks, thus Oxus is pronounced Oks'us. If, however, the x end a syllable which immediately precedes a vowel in the accented syllable, then the x may be pronounced with its voiced sound, that of hard g followed by s, as in Alexarchus, which is often pronounced Al-egz-ar'chus.

14. The letter p, when initial, and followed by t, is not usually uttered, as in Ptolemæus, which is pronounced Tol'e-mæ-us.

15. Ph represents the Greek character ϕ, and is pronounced as f; thus, Philippi is pronounced Fi-lip'pi. But when ph is followed by a consonant in the same syllable, as in Phthia, it is usually omitted in utterance, this word being pronounced Thi'a.

16. Ps represents the Greek character ψ, which as an initial is pronounced as s, the p being generally omitted in utterance, as in Psyche, which is pronounced Sy'kē. Many persons, however, pronounce the p as well as the s of ps.

17. As a general rule, when any combinations of consonant letters which are difficult to utter occur at the initial part of words, the utterance of the first may be omitted, thus Tmolus may be pronounced Mo'lus; Mnemosyne, Ne-mos'y-ne; Ctesiphon, Tes'i-phon; while the digraph ch is dropped in Chthonia, making the pronunciation Tho'ni-a.

FORMS OF ADDRESS

USED IN CEREMONIOUS COMMUNICATIONS WITH PERSONS OF TITLE OR OFFICIAL POSITION.

Ambassador. The title 'Excellency' belongs specially to ambassadors, as well as to governors of colonies, and the Lord-lieutenant of Ireland. Address letters 'His Excellency (with name or distinctive title following) Her Britannic Majesty's Ambassador and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Court of ——'. Begin: 'Sir', 'My Lord', according as the ambassador possesses title or not. When personal reference is made say 'Your Excellency'. An envoy extraordinary or chargé d'affaires, though inferior to an ambassador strictly so called, also usually receives the title 'Excellency'; and the wives of ambassadors are generally addressed similarly during their husbands' tenure of office and while residing abroad.

Archbishop. Address: 'His Grace the Lord Archbishop of ——'. Begin: 'My Lord Archbishop'. Refer to as 'Your Grace'. The most formal method of addressing the Archbishop of Canterbury is as follows: 'The Most Reverend Father in God, James (or whatever the Christian name is), by Divine Providence Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of All England and Metropolitan'. The Archbishop of York is addressed as 'The Most Reverend Father in God, ——, by Divine Permission Lord Archbishop of York, Primate of England and Metropolitan'. An Irish archbishop is now addressed as 'The Most Reverend the Archbishop of ——'. An archbishop may be addressed as 'The Right Honourable and Most Reverend the Archbishop of ——' if he have a claim to be called 'Right Hon.' apart from his ecclesiastical position. In America the common form of address is 'The Most Reverend A— B—, D.D.' The wife of an Archbishop has no special title in right of her husband's dignity, being only plain Mrs., and the same with the family.

Archdeacon. An archdeacon is styled 'Venerable': 'The Venerable the Archdeacon of ——'. Begin: 'Venerable Sir', or 'Reverend Sir', or 'Mr. Archdeacon' (especially in speaking).

Baron. Address: 'The Right Hon. Lord ——'; less formally 'The Lord ——'. Begin: 'My Lord'. Refer to as 'Your Lordship'.

Baron's Daughter. Barons' daughters are all entitled to be called 'Honourable'. Unmarried they are addressed as 'The Hon. A— B—', with Christian and surname. They retain the title 'Hon.' after marriage, the wife of a commoner being 'The Hon. Mrs.' with husband's surname, the wife of a knight or baronet being 'The Hon. Lady', with husband's surname. Begin 'Madam': refer to as 'Your ladyship' if so entitled by marriage. If a higher rank is conferred by the husband the title of course corresponds.

Baron's Son. All the sons are 'Honourable', with Christian name and surname. In Scotland the eldest son is addressed as 'The Hon. the Master of' (peerage title), or 'The Hon. (John), Master of'. Begin: 'Sir'. The wife of a baron's son is 'The Hon. Mrs.', with husband's surname or both Christian name and surname. Begin: 'Madam'. If the daughter of an earl, marquis, or duke she must be addressed accordingl Baroness. Address: 'The Right Hon. the Baroness ——', or 'The Right Hon. Lady ——', or 'The Lady ——'. Begin: 'Madam'; refer to as 'Your Ladyship'.

Baronet. Address: 'Sir A— B—, Bart.', giving Christian name and surname. The Christian name must be given; it is quite wrong to speak, for instance, of 'Sir Vernon Harcourt' where 'Vernon' is merely one of the surnames. Begin: 'Sir'. A baronet's wife is addressed as 'Lady' with husband's surname (her Christian name would also be used if the daughter of a duke, marquis, or earl, and in this case she would also be 'Right Hon.'). Begin: 'Madam'; refer to as 'Your Ladyship'.

Bishop. Address: 'The Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of ——', or 'The Right Rev. A— B—, Lord Bishop of——', or simply 'The Lord Bishop of ——'. Begin: 'My Lord Bishop'; refer to as 'Your Lordship'. In formal documents a bishop is styled 'The Right Rev. Father in God, John, by Divine Permission, Lord Bishop of ——'. A bishop suffragan is addressed as 'The Right Rev. the Bishop Suffragan of ——'. Begin: 'Right Rev. Sir'. Bishops' wives and families have no special recognition as such.

In Ireland the Bishops of the Protestant church are now most correctly addressed as 'The Right Reverend the Bishop of ——' (or in the case of Meath 'The Most Reverend'). Begin: 'Right Rev. Sir'. In Scotland the usage is the same—'The Right Rev. the Bishop of ——'; or 'The Right Rev. A— B—, Bishop of'; or 'The Right Rev. Bishop ——' (with surname). Begin: 'Right Rev. Sir'. The Primus of the Scottish Episcopal Church is addressed as 'The Most Rev.'. Begin: 'Most Rev. Sir'. Neither Irish nor Scottish bishops can claim to be spoken of as 'Lord Bishop', 'Your Lordship', though this is sometimes done.

[Roman Catholic bishops in Ireland seem to claim the title 'Most Reverend'.]

Canon. Address: 'The Rev. Canon ——'. Begin: 'Reverend Sir'.

Cardinal. The special title of a cardinal as such is 'His Eminence'. Begin: 'Your Eminence'.

Chargé d'Affaires. See Ambassador.

Clergy. The general form of address is 'The Reverend A— B—'. Begin: 'Rev. Sir' or simply 'Sir'. If a clergyman is the son of a duke or marquis he is to be addressed as 'The Rev. Lord A— B—'; if the son of an earl, viscount, or baron: 'The Rev. the Honourable A— B—', or 'The Hon. and Rev. A— B—'. If he is a baronet, 'The Rev. Sir A— B—, Bart.'

Congress, Members of (U.S.). Addressed generally 'The Honourable A— B—'.

Consul. There is no special form of address to a person as such. 'A— B—, Esq., H. B. M.'s Consul', 'Consul-general', or as the case may be. In the U. States, however, a consul is commonly called 'Honourable'.

Countess. Address: 'The Right Honourable the Countess of ——'. Begin: 'Madam'; refer to as 'Your Ladyship'.

Dean. Address: 'The Very Reverend the Dean of——'. Begin: 'Very Rev. Sir'; more familiarly 'Mr. Dean' (used in oral communications).

Doctor. The initials denoting the particular degree are placed after the usual form of address, whether D.D., LL.D., M.D., D.Sc., &c. 'The Rev. A— B—, D.D.'; 'A— B—, Esq., M.D.' Less formally: 'The Rev. Doctor B—'; 'Doctor A— B—'.

Dowager. When the holder of a title marries, the widow of a previous holder of the same title becomes 'dowager', this being often inserted in addressing her: 'The Right Hon. the Dowager Countess of ——'; 'The Dowager Lady ——'. Instead of 'Dowager', to which some ladies object, the Christian name may be used: 'The Right Hon. Mary Countess of ——'. Begin: 'Madam'; refer to as 'Your Ladyship'.

Duchess. Address: 'Her Grace the Duchess of ——'. Begin: 'Madam'; refer to as 'Your Grace'.

Duke. Address: 'His Grace the Duke of ——'. Begin: 'My Lord Duke'; refer to as 'Your Grace'. All the children of a duke are entitled to be called 'Right Honourable'. Royal dukes are different. See Prince.

Duke's Daughter. Address: 'The Right Hon. Lady', with Christian name and surname, or 'The Lady', with Christian name and surname. Begin: 'Madam'; refer to as 'Your Ladyship'. If married to a commoner or a peer by courtesy, the surname is derived from the husband's name or title; if to a peer, the wife takes a title corresponding to her husband's.

Duke's Son. A duke's eldest son takes by courtesy one of his father's secondary titles, and is thus usually a marquis or an earl, being addressed as if really a peer with the respective rank. His wife receives the corresponding title, being thus a marchioness or countess, and their eldest son takes also a courtesy title belonging to the family, being thus either a viscount or a baron.

A duke's younger son is addressed similarly to his sisters: 'The Right Honourable Lord A— B—', or 'The Lord A— B—'. Begin: 'My Lord'; refer to as 'Your Lordship'. Their wives are treated in a corresponding manner: 'The Right Honourable Lady A— B—', or 'The Lady A— B—'; 'Madam', 'Your Ladyship'.

Earl. Address: 'The Right Honourable the Earl of ——', or 'The Earl of ——'. Begin: 'My Lord'; refer to as 'Your Lordship'. The wife of an earl is a countess. (See above.)

Earl's Children. The eldest son of an earl (like the eldest son of a duke) takes a courtesy title from his father and thus ranks either as a viscount or a baron, being treated as if really a peer and his wife as a peeress. The younger sons of an earl are all called 'Honourable' (their eldest brother is 'Right Honourable')—'The Hon. A— B—', the same as the sons of a baron. (See above.)

The daughters of an earl are all 'Right Honourable', and are addressed as the daughters of a duke. (See above.)

Envoy. See Ambassador.

Executive Council, Members of (in colonial governments). Generally addressed as 'The Honourable A— B—'.

Governor of Colony. Colonial governors have the title of 'Excellency' in virtue of their office. Address: 'His Excellency A— B—, Esq. (Sir A— B—, The Right Honourable the Earl of, &c.), Governor of ——'. Begin according to rank; refer to as 'Your Excellency'. A duke holding such a position would, however, be 'His Grace', 'Your Grace'. A governor's wife does not have any claim to be called 'Her Excellency'. Lieutenant-governors, as in India and the Dominion of Canada, are styled 'Honourable', 'His Honour', 'Your Honour'.

Governor of State (U.S.). Usually addressed as 'His Excellency'. 'His Excellency A— B—, Governor of ——', or 'His Excellency the Governor of ——'. A lieutenant-governor is called 'Honourable'.

Judge. This in Britain has not a very distinctive meaning. In England and Ireland the judges of the supreme courts are called Lords Justices and Justices; in Scotland the judges are the Lords of Session. (See Justice, Lord Justice, Lords of Session.) In England the county court judges, however, are regularly called 'Judge'. 'His Honour Judge ——' (surname); on the bench referred to as 'Your Honour'.

In many British colonies the members of the higher courts are called judges and addressed as 'The Honourable A— B—'. In the U. States the term judge is regularly applied to all such functionaries; and all are addressed in the same way.

Justice. Judges of the High Court of Justice in England, in the Chancery and other divisions, are called justices. Address: 'The Honourable Mr. Justice ——'; or if a knight, 'The Hon. Sir A— B—'. Begin in both cases 'Sir'. On the bench he is addressed as 'My Lord'; and referred to as 'Your Lordship'.

Justice of Peace. In England is formally addressed in documents as 'The Worshipful', and on the bench is referred to as 'Your Worship'.

King. To be addressed as 'The King's Most Excellent Majesty'. Begin: 'Sire', or 'May it please Your Majesty'; refer to as 'Your Ma-

...t Bachelor. Treated as a baronet, but 'Kt.' is not usually appended to the name in addressing a letter. As in the case of a baronet, carefully avoid using a surname instead of a Christian name.

Lords of Appeal (in Ordinary). These are judicial members of the House of Lords who rank as barons and are so addressed. Their wives are baronesses; their children are not specially distinguished.

Lords of Session. These are the judges of the supreme court of Scotland. Some of these lords decide to retain their surname when elevated to the bench ('Lord Young') others substitute the name of an estate. Address: 'The Honourable Lord ——'. France. The system of weights and measures established in France as one of the consequences of the great revolution, and borrowed from France by many other countries, is known as the metric system, because it is based on the mètre. The mètre is about one ten-millionth of the distance from the equator to one of the poles measured along a meridian, and its length is equal to 39·37 inches or 3·281 feet; hence 11 mètres=12 yards. All the other measures of length are got either by subdividing or multiplying the mètre by 10, the French system being entirely decimal in character.

The chief subdivisions of the mètre are the décimètre or tenth of a mètre=·3937 inches, the centimètre or hundredth of a mètre=·3937 of an inch, or nearly ·4 or $\frac{2}{5}$ths of an inch or $\frac{1}{30\frac{1}{2}}$ of a foot; and the millimètre, or thousandth of a mètre=·039 or $\frac{1}{25}$th of an inch.

The chief multiple of the mètre is the kilomètre of 1000 mètres=3280·87 feet, or 1093·6 yds., or fully three-fifths of a mile (more correctly ·621 of a mile).

The chief weights are the gramme and the kilogramme (or 1000 grammes). The gramme is the weight of a cubic centimètre of distilled water, and the kilogramme is the weight of a cubic décimètre of distilled water at the temperature of 4° Centigrade or 39·1° Fahr. In English weight the gramme=15·43 grains; the kilogramme=2·2 lbs. or 35·27 oz. The quintal or centner=220·4 lbs.; the tonneau=2204 lbs.

The measures of surface are mostly named after the corresponding measures of length: the square centimètre=·155 of a square inch, or 1 sq. inch=6·45 sq. centimètres; the sq. décimètre=15½ sq. inches; the sq. mètre=10·76 sq. feet; the are=100 sq. mètres=119·6 sq. yards; the hectare (100 ares) the common measure for land=2·47 acres or 2 acres 2280 sq. yards (say 2½ acres). The square kilomètre=·386 of a square mile.

The chief cubic or solid measures are the cubic centimètre=·061 of a cubic inch; the cubic décimètre=61 cubic inches; and the cubic mètre or stère=35·3 cubic feet or 1·3 cubic yard. Hence 1 cubic yard=·764 of a cubic mètre.

The standard measure of capacity is the litre =61 cubic inches or 1·76 pint or ·88 of a quart. The centilitre, or one hundredth of a litre=·07 of a gill; the décilitre=·7043 of a gill; the décalitre (or ten litres)=2·2 gallons; the hectolitre (100 litres)=22 gallons 2·75 bushels; the kilolitre (1000 litres)=·220 gallons=27½ bushels=3·44 quarters.

It will be noticed that if any letter be followed by one of equal or less value the total value is equal to the sum of the two taken together; but if a letter be preceded by one of less value the difference of their separate values is to be understood.

CHEMICAL.

By means of chemical symbols, or formulas, the composition of the most complicated substances can be very easily expressed, and that, too, in a very small compass. An abbreviated expression of this kind often gives, in a single line, more information as to details than could be given in many lines of letterpress.

When any of the above symbols stands by itself it indicates one atom of the element it represents. Thus H stands for one atom of hydrogen, O for one atom of oxygen, and Cl for one atom of chlorine.

When a symbol has a small figure or number underwritten, and to the right of it, such figure or number indicates the number of atoms of the element. Thus O_2 signifies two atoms of oxygen, S_5 five atoms of sulphur, and C_{10} ten atoms of carbon.

When two or more elements are united to form a chemical compound, their symbols are written one after the other, to indicate the compound. Thus H_2O means water, a compound of two atoms of hydrogen and one of oxygen; $C_{12}H_{22}O_{11}$ indicates cane-sugar, a compound of twelve atoms of carbon, twenty-two of hydrogen, and eleven of oxygen.

These two expressions as they stand denote respectively a molecule of the substance they represent, that is, the smallest possible quantity of it capable of existing in the free state. To express several molecules a large figure is prefixed; thus, $2H_2O$ represents two molecules of water, $4(C_{12}H_{22}O_{11})$ four molecules of cane-sugar.

When a compound is formed of two or more compounds the symbolical expressions for the compound are usually connected together by a comma; thus, the crystallized magnesic sulphate is $MgSO_4,7H_2O$. The symbols may also be used to express the changes which occur during chemical action, and they are then written in the form of an equation, of which one side represents the substances as they exist before the change, the other the result of the reaction. Thus, $2H_2+O_2=2H_2O$ expresses the fact that two molecules of hydrogen, each containing two atoms, and one of oxygen, also containing two atoms, combine to give two molecules of water, each of them containing two atoms of hydrogen and one of oxygen.

SPECIMEN OF A CORRECTED PROOF-SHEET, SHOWING THE APPLICATION OF ABOVE SIGNS.

I wonder if any man is as clever as he he imagines himself. I know I have not the confidence in myself I had a month ago as an amateur cook. I think it was my friend Davidson who first put the idea in my head to try my hand at cooking. The way he would describe the cooking of steaks on his yacht would make any one's mouth water, and it seemed to be always steaks they had. I asked him how he learned to cook, and he gave me the secret in one lesson. He said, "You just use plenty butter; that's how women can't cook properly: they grudge butter". It is five or six years since he first told me about his wonderful powers as a cook, and I have often longed for an opportunity to emulate him in the art. davidson always quite got enthusiastic on this subject. He would say, "Man, when it was My turn, the fellows could hardly be kept on deck after the onions began to brown and the smell went up; and the doctor used to stand with a big rolling pin to keep James and the rest of them back, and every minute they would be crying down that it would do fine". [I don't know anything about yachting, and any time I have been over at hours two sea I had no taste for food. I always had more than I wanted. I remember going to Dublin, and at breakfast a tureen of ham and eggs was placed beside me, but by the time I had helped the company I had to go on deck and admire the prospect. An idea occurred to me, however, to get some companions to join me on a holiday with a caravan. "I would attend to the cooking," I said; but I never got any one to agree.

I believe now if I had promoted each one to office of cook I would have been successful, for I think every man is sure he is a born cook.
